

Safety First, Fun Second...

Paintball, as a sport, has fallen victim to bad press and misbeliefs. Can paintball be dangerous? Absolutely—but what most people don't realize is that the gross majority of paintball-related injuries occur in unsupervised settings such as backyards, or homes.

At Command Decisions we pride ourselves in our safety protocols. All players are given a safety briefing and are supervised at all times by our trained referees. We require and monitor the use of gun chronographs, barrel blocking sleeves, and safety masks/goggles. We like fun, but we love injury-free.

Command Decisions is the home of three nationally publicized and widely recognized paintball tanks. These tanks are available for promotional appearances and charity events!

A Bit About CDWC...

Command Decisions Wargames Center (CDWC) is located just outside of Taylorsville, North Carolina off of Highway 127, in the small community of Bethlehem. Owners and operators, Ken Spencer and Andrew Ferguson, have groomed nearly 70 acres over the last 15 years to include more than 10 bases, a simulated city, a fort, and a helipad. The terrain is diverse and can accommodate all players, regardless of size, age, gender, or experience. The field is under constant revision and new bases are always under revision and development!

Our referees, who are also experienced paintballers, are trained to keep games safe, fun, and challenging (for those who request a challenge!)

CDWC is home to a fully operational and equipped paintball store. The store offers retail sales of woodsball paintball gear, paintballs, both CO2 and High Pressure Air refills, and is a Tippmann Authorized Repair Center.
